A Word of Welcome

Dear Conference delegate,

I'd like to welcome you to this 62nd Conference of the Political Studies Association, held in Belfast for the first time since 1997 and hosted by the University of Ulster. We are expecting well over 500 delegates, representing over 50 different countries, to join us at the Europa Hotel.

The overarching theme is 'In Defence of Politics', echoing the title of the late and lamented Sir Bernard Crick's classic work from 1962, and calling on us to reflect on the roles political debate, politicians and political scientists have - or should be playing - in democratic society. We have an outstanding round-table discussion precisely on this theme to kick the conference off, with David Blunkett MP, Peter Riddell and Matt Flinders, a closing plenary lecture by Mr Speaker, John Bercow MP, and much in-between. The annual Government and Opposition-sponsored Leonard Schapiro lecture will be given by Professor Brendan O'Leary, who will also contribute on Northern Ireland alongside Monica McWilliams, and of course Martin McGuinness as our after dinner speaker. Amongst other highlights, Professor Colin Hay will discuss the hot topic of REF 2014 and Impact, and John Bercow and his counterpart in the Lords, Baroness D'Souza, will discuss engagement and impact.

It's certainly been a busy year at the PSA. Numerous top politicians, political scientists and journalists attended our increasingly high-profile annual awards dinner in November, at which we also presented the winners of our first student short video competition, highlighting that many young people feel passionately about politics and are eager for their voices to be heard. Our new programme of schools talks is helping to develop our links with schools and teachers to encourage growth within the study of politics, and we have continued to collaborate with the Institute for Government, running further media briefings on election-related themes. We have also been working to build a close relationship with ESRC to ensure a strong place for political studies in UK research funding. All these themes, around the teaching of politics in schools, impact, and research funding will be under discussion in Belfast. Do join in and let us know your views.

Thanks for organising this year's conference are especially due to the academic convenors - Professor Paul Carmichael and Dr Cathy Gormley-Heenan, who have put together a fantastic programme, and to Dr Máire Braniff, Helena Djurkovic, Louise Bates, Sandra McDonagh and Professor Richard Topf. I should also like to thank Wiley-Blackwell for their generous sponsorship.

With over 160 panel sessions reflecting the diversity and pluralism of political studies in the UK, and of course the opportunity to explore one of Europe's most transformed and most engaging cities, this year's conference promises plenty to interest, intellectually challenge and entertain. I hope your conference experience is thoroughly enjoyable.

Professor Charlie Jeffery

Chair, Political Studies Association of the United Kingdom

13.00-14.00	The Political Theory Specialist Group Address: Politics as a Humane Science Speaker: Professor Preston T. King (Morehouse College, Atlanta University) Aristotle wrote of 'man' as a zoon politikon. Politics has also been fingered as the 'art of the possible'. This raises the question of the scientific nature of politics. This raises too the question of its constructivist or architectural character. Politics is not normally accommodated as a 'science'. Yet it is a piece of architecture that we build (sometimes shabbily, sometimes not) and inhabit as sensibly as we can. Does the 'non-scientific' nature of politics render it inferior? Or does its constructivist character elevate it to the status of art? Should politics, with Bagehot, be aligned with physics? Or is the affinity closer to such as musical composition and orchestration? Is politics merely to do, following Lasswell, with who gets what, when, how? Or is it a matter of variably resolving conflicting perceptions of the good? The argument that follows makes a case for politics as rational invention (overlapping in a degree the arguments of figures like Winch and Collingwood) that attains its apogee more as humanism than scientism.	Grand 3
13.00-14.00	The Ethnopolitics Specialist Group Address: An Ethical Code for European Migration Policy: a Viable Proposal Speaker: Professor Ricard Zapata-Barrero (Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Spain) In recent years there has been a significant growth in migration to developed industrial countries, which has led to major policy activity around the issue of migration at a national, regional and international level. This policy discussion has tended to be based on an underlying assumption of the 'national interest' and focused on arguments around security, welfare and identity. In Europe, and in the context of economic crisis, the tendency to take a nationalist stance can be seen in the consolidation of a wave of nationalist, state and identity-based discourses by most political parties, and in the rise in governmental use	Grand 4

- ▶ of legal instruments to place limits on diversity (mainly in opposition to Islam). These moves have contributed to the rise of negative public opinion against immigrants and against cultural diversity. In this context, state practices seem to be based on an assumption that states have no obligations to non-native citizens who reside within their territory (a position which has been characterized by Brian Barry as an “anything goes” approach to the citizens of other countries). I have previously (2010) theorised state behaviour by putting myself in the position of the policy-maker and asking: what information resources (positions, perspectives, discourses, target groups, etc.) does the policy-maker have or need to have for ethically orienting migration policies? I have subsequently built on this (forthcoming) through applying Joseph Carens’ critical thinking/viability nexus to argue that we cannot defend an ethical code without having some considerations as to the restrictions and institutions that can ensure compliance. In this paper I will build on this work by developing a viable proposal for an ethical code on migration policy for the EU and European states.

16.00-17.30	PSA Participatory and Deliberative Democracy Specialist Group Address Localizing Development: Does Participation Work? Speaker: Dr Vijayendra Rao (The World Bank Institute) The idea that fostering citizen participation is central to resolving problems of good governance and development is one that has acquired tremendous force in recent times. It is the unifying theme which underlies many different approaches towards localizing development whether in the form of community based/driven projects or the decentralization of government decision making. Community participation in the development process is expected to build demand for inclusive and effective local governance, empower poor and vulnerable groups, improve the delivery of public services, and increase access to resources and livelihood opportunities - particularly for the most marginalized. In line with this, both governments and donors have invested very substantial resources in programs and projects which use participatory approaches to build local institutions. The paper examines the conceptual foundations of this approach and builds an analytical framework in which civic participation is viewed as a potential solution to specific civil society, market, and government failures. It then uses this framework to accomplish two things. First, it reviews the evidence on the efficacy of participatory approaches to problems of development. It then identifies the ways in which observed policy choices for inducing participation are intimately shaped and constrained by the historical, socio-cultural, and political context. In assembling the evidence, the	Penthouse Suite

The paper therefore explicitly relates to the central conference themes of citizenship and how they interact with each other and political elites in developing countries and moreover the theme of 'the people's politics' as the paper surveys and reviews a number of approaches that have enabled citizens in developing countries to engage in the political system in new and innovative ways. However, the paper will elucidate which approaches of 'the people's politics' in developing countries have been successful, which have not and the reasons for this.

Kaufmann, Birkbeck University of London Malachi O'Doherty, journalist/writer/broadcaster; Dr Katy Hayward, Queen's University, Belfast; Conall McDevitt, South Belfast MLA and Regional Development Spokesman for the SDLP; Peter Weir, North Down MLA; Lord Paul Bew, Queen's University, Belfast This special Political Quarterly panel brings together Northern Ireland politicians, journalists and academics to discuss the future of the Peace Process in Northern Ireland in a period of fiscal retrenchment and endemic dissident republicanism. A special issue (March 2012) of The Political Quarterly on this theme will be freely available at the seminar. The Political Quarterly and the Birkbeck Centre for British Politics and Public Life hosted a special roundtable seminar entitled 'Northern Ireland: Fragile Peace in an Age of Austerity,' at Birkbeck College, University of London, on 14 October 2011. The meeting brought together more than 25 leading academics and journalists from Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland and mainland Britain who work on Northern Ireland. The roundtable, which took place in Birkbeck's Council Room, was productive and often contentious, taking stock of the peace process as of late 2011. It explored the future of the political and constitutional settlement in Northern Ireland in light of growing dissident and paramilitary activity and cuts in public spending, as well as economic turmoil in the South. Many participants contributed articles which formed a special issue of The Political Quarterly which will be published in late March 2012 and made available at the PSA panel. Our panellists will comment on the contributions in the special issue and their thoughts on the future of the Peace Process. How to start again after Berlusconi]. The book's central theme is Bill's journey to find La Buona Italia, as distinct from La Mala Italia, and to see what can be done to unleash more of the good. The book's subtitle reflects both the role that Silvio Berlusconi had in stimulating its writing and the reforms which, in the author's view, are necessary to enable Italy to 'start again' once Berlusconi leaves the political scene. The focus on Berlusconi will enable Bill to address at least two of the issues central to the conference theme: 'ethics and politics' and 'leaders and authority; citizens and consumerism'.	Penthouse Suite

RT HON JOHN BERCOW MP, SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

(PSA Workshop on Engagement & Impact; Closing Plenary)

On 22 June 2009 John Bercow was elected 157th Speaker of the House of Commons. A former national chairman of the Federation of Conservative Students and London Borough Councillor, he was elected Member of Parliament for Buckingham in May 1997 as a Conservative, serving on the front benches as spokesman for Education & Employment and Home Affairs.

He was appointed Shadow Chief Secretary to the Treasury in 2001, Shadow Minister for Work & Pensions in 2002 and from 2003 to 2004 as Shadow Secretary of State for International Development. He then became a member of the International Development Select Committee, and served many All-Party Groups (APG), including establishing the APG on brain tumours. In September 2007 he was appointed by the Government to lead a review of services for children and young people with speech, language and communication needs. Appointed to the Speaker's Conference on Parliamentary Representation in November 2008 he became Chair of the Conference on becoming Speaker. Married to Sally, they are proud parents to three young children.

RT HON DAVID BLUNKETT MP

(Opening Plenary: In Defence of Politics)

David Blunkett was elected as the Member of Parliament for Sheffield Brightside in 1987. In Parliament, David led Labour's assault on the poll tax as Opposition Local Government Spokesman. Promoted to the Shadow Cabinet in 1992, he took on, in turn, responsibility for Health, Education and then Education and Employment.

Following the 1997 Labour election victory, David became Secretary of State for Education and Employment, where he oversaw massive improvements in the basic standards of literacy and numeracy, substantial class size reductions and the introduction of university tuition fees. He led on the implementation of the New Deal, saw unemployment fall to below 1 million and was committed to increasing equality through responsibility for the Equal Opportunities Commission and the establishment of the Disability Rights Commission. With Labour returned in 2001, David became Home Secretary, where he dealt with counter-terrorism and the aftermath of the September 11th attacks, crime and antisocial behaviour, managing immigration and asylum, policing, criminal justice, prison and probation services, and citizenship.

Since 2006, in addition to completing his diaries, 'The Blunkett Tapes', David has undertaken a series of major pieces of work - including on anti poverty and affordable credit; on social mobility; a review of the future role of the community and voluntary sector at the request of the then Prime Minister; chaired a major review of dedicated school transport, leading a Commission which recommended extensive changes; and undertaken a review of police accountability for the Home Office which helped shape a subsequent Government White Paper.

David is involved with a large number of local, national and international charities, and is a regular contributor to the British media through newspapers and journals, radio and television.

BARONESS D'SOUZA, LORD SPEAKER

(PSA Workshop on Engagement & Impact)

Baroness D'Souza became the second Lord Speaker elected by Members of the House of Lords in July 2011 and took office on 1 September, before which she held the post of Convenor of the Crossbench Peers.

In addition to overseeing business in the chamber, Baroness D'Souza's responsibilities include chairing the House Committee (the principal supervisory body for the House of Lords administration), representing the Lords on ceremonial occasions and acting as an ambassador for the House both at home and abroad.

Baroness D'Souza's background and interests include human rights and development issues. A consultant to the REDRESS Trust and trustee of a range of organisations concerned with human rights and development, she was also executive director of ARTICLE 19, a human rights organisation devoted to promoting freedom of expression.

Baroness D'Souza's background is in anthropology, which she taught at both the London School of Economics and Oxford Brookes University, and she was also an independent research consultant for the UN from 1985 to 1988.

PROFESSOR MATTHEW FLINDERS

(Opening Plenary: In Defence of Politics; PSA Workshop on Impact & Engagement)

After completing a PhD in governance, public policy and legislative studies at the University of Sheffield, Matthew Flinders was appointed to lectureship at the university in 2000 and was appointed Professor of Parliamentary Government & Governance on 1 January 2009.

He was awarded the PSA's Harrison Prize 2002 for the best paper in Political Studies, and in 2004 he became the first recipient of the Richard Rose Prize. During 2005-6 he held a Leverhulme Research Fellowship and a Visiting Academic Fellowship within the Cabinet Office, and in 2010 he acted as an advisor to the Government of Thailand on behalf of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and also held a Visiting Fellowship in the Department of Politics and International Relations at the University of Sydney. He has published over one hundred journal articles and book chapters, including The Politics of Accountability (2001), Multi-Level Governance (2004), Delegated Governance and the British State (2008) [awarded the W.J.M. Mackenzie Prize for the Best Book in Political Science], The Oxford Handbook of British Politics (2009), Democratic Drift (2010) and Defending Politics (2012).

He is a regular contributor to a number of newspapers including The Times, The Guardian and The Times Higher. In 2011 he wrote and presented a three-part series for BBC Radio 4 entitled 'In Defence of Politics' that attracted a listening audience in excess of 2.5 million people.

Professor Flinders is married with four children. He plays rugby for Sheffield Tigers Rugby Union Football Club and is an active member of Dark Peak Fell Runners.

PROFESSOR COLIN HAY

(PSA Keynote Address: REF 2014 and Impact)

Colin Hay is Professor of Political Analysis and co-director of the Political Economy Research Centre (PERC) at the University of Sheffield.

He is the author, co-author or editor of a number of books, including most recently, The Political Economy of European Welfare Capitalism (Palgrave, 2012), New Directions in Political Science (commissioned by the PSA to mark the 60th anniversary of the association, Palgrave, 2010), The Role of Ideas in Political Analysis (Routledge, 2010), The Oxford Handbook of British Politics (Oxford, 2009), Why We Hate Politics (Polity, 2007, winner of the Political Studies Association's WJM Mackenzie Prize in 2008), European Politics (Oxford University Press, 2007), The State: Theories and Issues (Palgrave, 2006) and Political Analysis (Palgrave, 2002).

He is co-founder and co-editor of the journals Comparative European Politics and British Politics and currently lead editor of New Political Economy. He was awarded the 2009 WJM Mackenzie Prize for his book 'Why We Hate Politics', and is also chair of the Politics and International Studies sub-panel for REF2014.

MARTIN MCGUINNESS MP MLA, DEPUTY FIRST MINISTER

(Conference Annual Dinner speaker)

Martin McGuinness was born in Derry in 1950. He joined Sinn Féin in 1970 and is an elected member of the party's Ard Comhairle (National Executive). In 1982 he was elected to the Stormont Assembly and was elected as a Sinn Féin Negotiator in the Forum elections in May 1996. From 1990 he was involved in early discussions with the Irish and British Governments as Sinn Féin Chief Negotiator. He led the Sinn Féin negotiating team in the talks chaired by Senator Mitchell which commenced in September 1997 and which, seven months later, culminated in the Good Friday Agreement. More recently, Mr McGuinness played a key role in the talks that led to the historic agreement with Dr Paisley and the DUP on 26 March, 2007.

He was elected MP for the Mid-Ulster constituency in 1997 and was re-elected to this seat in 2001, 2005 and in 2010. He has held an Assembly seat for the same constituency since 1998. In November 1999 he became Minister for Education in the devolved Executive and held this post until suspension of devolution in October 2002. He was appointed as deputy First Minister on 8 May 2007 and was re-elected to this post in May 2011.

He married his wife Bernie in 1974. They live in Derry and have four children, two girls and two boys, and five grandchildren. Mr McGuinness has a keen interest in sport, walking and literature, particularly poetry.

PROFESSOR BRENDAN O'LEARY

(Leonard Schapiro Memorial Lecture & PSA Keynote Plenary: Consociational Theory and Powersharing in Northern Ireland)

Brendan O'Leary is Lauder Professor of Political Science at the University of Pennsylvania and Professor of Political Science at Queen's University Belfast. He graduated from Keble College, Oxford University, with a first class honours degree in Philosophy, Politics and Economics, and wrote his PhD thesis at the London School of Economics & Political Science (LSE), which won the Robert McKenzie Memorial Prize.

Between 1983 and 2003 he was Professor of Political Science, head of the Government Department, and an elected Academic Governor at the LSE. He is the author, co-author or co-editor of twenty books and collections, and has authored or co-authored over 150 refereed articles and book chapters.

He was a political advisor to the British Labour Shadow Cabinet on Northern Ireland between 1987 and 1997, and advised Irish, British, and American government ministers and officials and the Irish-American Morrison delegation during the Northern Ireland peace process, appearing as an expert witness before the US Congress. His work with John McGarry on police reform in Northern Ireland was singled out in the press for influencing the Patten Commission. Between 2003 and 2009 he was an international constitutional advisor to the Kurdistan Regional Government in Iraq, assisting in preparation for the negotiation of the Transitional Administrative Law (2004) and the Constitution of Iraq (2005). During 2009-2010 he was the Senior Advisor on Power-Sharing in the Standby Team of the Mediation Support Unit of the Department of Political Affairs of the United Nations.

He lives in Philadelphia with his wife Dr Lori Salem, and is the father of Anna, and the step-father to Hana and Leila.

RT HON PETER RIDDELL

(Opening Plenary: In Defence of Politics)

Peter took up the Directorship at the Institute for Government on 1 January 2012. He was previously a Senior Fellow at the Institute and divided his time there with his work for the Detainee Inquiry, a privy counsellor panel looking at whether the British Government was implicated in the improper treatment of detainees held by other countries (a role from which he resigned at the end of last year to concentrate on the IfG).

He has co-authored reports on Transitions and Ministerial Effectiveness and has been closely involved in work on political and constitutional reform at the Institute.

Peter was a journalist for nearly 40 years, split between the Financial Times and The Times, where he had been their domestic political analyst and commentator. He has been a regular broadcaster, has written seven books and delivered frequent lectures. He chairs the Hansard Society, has received two honorary doctorates of literature, is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society, an Honorary Fellow of the Political Studies Association and was one of the first recipients of the President's medal of the British Academy. He was also appointed to the Privy Council in July 2010 in order to serve on the Detainee Inquiry.

Delegate Information

Delegate Badges

It is essential that delegates collect their conference packs and delegate badges from the reception desk on arrival at the conference. Delegates are required to wear their name badges at all times, for security reasons. You will not be allowed into a panel if you are not wearing the relevant delegate badge.

Annual Dinner

If you have booked for the Annual Dinner please ensure that you have collected your Annual Dinner ticket when you pick up your conference pack and badge. You will need to hand this ticket in on arrival at City Hall. We have had problems in previous years with "gatecrashers" and for this reason and limited seating you must present your ticket at the door.

Twitter

If you're interested in tweeting about the conference, the hashtag will be #psa12. Follow the PSA on Twitter:

Europa Hotel

The hotel sits next door to the glorious Grand Opera House. The historic Crown Bar, the National Trust's only public house property, beckons from just across the road. Plenty of shops, several award-winning restaurants, high-end entertainment and the business district are all within walking distance. During your stay feel free to partake in a tour of the City Hall, explore their exhibition centre or drop in for coffee at the Bobbin Café.

Some Helpful Tips

Internet

Internet access can be secured at the Hotel. Ask on arrival for full details.

Airport transfers

George Best Belfast City Airport:

The Airport Express 600 bus service runs from the Airport terminal to Belfast city centre every 20 minutes (06:00 - 22:05) Monday to Friday, terminating at Europa Buscentre on Great Victoria Street (which is next door to the conference venue).

A shuttle bus service operates between the Airport Terminal and the adjacent rail halt at Sydenham. A rail service operates every 30 minutes (06:00 - 23:00) Monday to Friday, to Central and Victoria Street Stations.

Belfast International Airport:

The Airport Express 300 operates a 24 hour service, departing from outside the Arrivals terminal at fifteen minute intervals and also terminating at Europa Buscentre.

Dublin International Airport:

Approximately 2 hours from Belfast by road or rail, with regular and direct coach transfers running from the airport to Belfast city.

Academic Convenor Details

PROFESSOR PAUL CARMICHAEL

Directly after having completed his undergraduate degree in Economics and Public Policy at Leeds Polytechnic in 1989, and his PhD at the University of Strathclyde in 1992, Paul Carmichael was appointed Lecturer in Public Administration in 1992, at the University of Ulster. Following promotion to Senior Lecturer in 1997, and Reader in 2002, he became Professor of Public Policy and Government in 2004. While serving as the Head of School of Criminology, Politics and Social Policy from 2005, Professor Carmichael was appointed as Dean of the Faculty of Social Sciences at Ulster in 2010. Professor Carmichael's research and teaching interests include local and devolved government, the civil service, and aspects of politics and public administration more generally, on which he has published widely and presented at many conferences. He has served as peer reviewer for the ESRC and a string of leading academic journals, as well as an Editorial Board member of the journal Public Policy and Administration. In addition, he has been a member of the QAA Politics and IR benchmarking panel.

Professor Carmichael became an Academician of the Academy of Social Sciences in 2007. He is a Fellow of the Centre for British Studies at the Humboldt University of Berlin, having previously also been a Visiting Lecturer at the University of Utah. Professor Carmichael was co-opted to the Executive of the Political Studies Association in 1996, as Conference Convenor for the Belfast conference in 1997. Subsequently, in the same year, he was elected to the PSA Executive and, in 2000, he was elected as the Honorary Secretary of the Association, a role in which he has since served continuously. From 2004-09, he also served as the Vice Chair of the Public Administration Committee of the Joint University Council.

DR CATHY GORMLEY-HEENAN

Dr. Cathy Gormley-Heenan is the Director of the Institute for Research in Social Sciences (IRiSS) and a Senior Lecturer in the School of Criminology, Politics & Social Policy at the University of Ulster. She was awarded a first class honours degree in politics at Queens University, Belfast (1994) and gained a MPhil in Modern Middle East Studies from Oxford University (1996) before becoming a Kennedy Scholar in the J.F.K. School of Government and Public Policy at Harvard University, USA (1996-1997). Other fellowships and awards include a fellowship in leadership studies at the James MacGregor Burns Academy of Leadership at the University of Maryland, USA in 2000; the 2004-2005 Tip O'Neill Fellowship in Peace Studies at INCORE (International Conflict Research), University of Ulster/United Nations University; and the UK's Political Studies Association's Bernard Crick Award for Outstanding Teaching in 2007. Her PhD, which was awarded by the University of Ulster (2005), focused on the subject of political leadership during the Northern Ireland peace process. Recent published works include Gormley-Heenan, C. & Lightfoot, S. eds. (2012) Teaching Politics & International Relations (Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan); Aughey, A. & Gormley-Heenan, C. eds (2011) The Anglo-Irish Agreement: Rethinking Its Legacy (Manchester: Manchester University Press) and Gormley-Heenan, C. (2007) Political Leadership and the Northern Ireland Peace Process: Role, Capacity and Effect (Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan). She is a member of the UK's Political Studies Association and the UK's Kennedy Scholars Association and serves on the editorial boards of Community Development: Journal of the Community Development Society (Routledge) and the Online Journal of Conflict Transformation and Security. She is also a member of the ESRC's Peer Review College.

THE SCHOOL OF CRIMINOLOGY, POLITICS AND SOCIAL POLICY

The School of Criminology, Politics and Social Policy (CPSP) is located within the Faculty of Social Sciences and houses the broad subject areas of Criminology, Politics and Social Policy including staff engaged in the fields of Public Policy, Public Administration, and Procurement. The School is based at both the Jordanstown and Magee campuses of the University and currently employs 32 full-time permanent academic members of staff including 8 professors, in addition to which there are a number of clerical support staff, as well as several visiting professors, part-time tutors and other guest speakers. At its heart, this vibrant School is about the creation of knowledge through research and its dissemination through teaching and innovation. Our focus is on teaching and research that advances and develops disciplines and impacts directly on policy and professional practice. The School aims to deliver high quality, flexible, student-centred, programmes of study that are intellectually challenging and which provide students with opportunities to develop their knowledge, skills and confidence to gain stimulating and fulfilling employment and to contribute to the advancement of their chosen profession.

A significant proportion of School academics are also members of Research Institutes at the University, including the Institute for Research in Social Sciences (IRiSS), the Business and Management Research Institute, and the Transitional Justice Institute (TJI). Academic staff within the School work to achieve international excellence in core areas of research and to transfer knowledge in support of economic, social and cultural development. Interdisciplinary and collaborative research is a key feature of School activity that informs and influences policy making and contributes to enriching the teaching and learning experience of our students.

Labour History Review

Labour History Review

Since 1960 Labour History Review has explored the working lives and politics of 'ordinary' people. It has played a key role in redefining social and political history.

The journal's emphasis is on British labour history, though comparative and international studies are not neglected. The editors welcome contributions which dig deeper within the traditional subject matter of labour history, but they are also keen to expand the parameters of the subject and the range of approaches taken to it. They are particularly interested in articles which engage with issues of gender and ethnicity or race, as well as class.

The journal will be published alongside the book series Studies in Labour History, edited by Dr Alan Campbell. The series provides reassessments of broad themes along with more detailed studies arising from the latest research in the field of labour and working class history, both in Britain and throughout the world.

Political corruption in Ireland 1922–2010

Elaine Byrne

A groundbreaking account of Irish corruption from 1922–2010, mapping the decline in standards from the inauguration of Irish independence in 1922 to the loss of economic sovereignty in 2010.

Byrne presents original and undocumented evidence on Ireland's corruption scandals including the Great Southern, Locke and Tully Tribunals. She examines the Beef, Mahon and Moriarty Tribunals and the controversial role played by Irish Prime Ministers.

At a time when international economic crisis has focused attention on governance issues, this book offers important and timely perspectives on corruption theory.

Mahatma Gandhi

Nonviolent Power in Action
Dennis Dalton; With a New
Afterword by the Author

Dennis Dalton's classic account of Gandhi's political and intellectual development demonstrates how his lifelong career in national politics gave him the opportunity to develop and refine his ideals and situates him within the "clash of civilizations" debate, identifying the implications of his work on continuing nonviolent protests.

Democracy, Islam, and Secularism in Turkey
Edited by Ahmet T. Kuru and
Alfred Stepan

While Turkey has grown as a world power, promoting the image of a progressive and stable nation, several choices in policy have strained its relationship with the East and the West. Providing historical, social, and religious context for this behavior, these essays examine issues relevant to Turkish debates and global concerns, from the state's position on religion to its involvement with the European Union.

Nomadic Theory

The Portable Rosi Braidotti
Rosi Braidotti

This collection provides a core introduction to Braidotti's nomadic theory and its innovative formulations, which playfully engage with Deleuze, Foucault, Irigaray, and a host of political and cultural issues. Keeping her distance from the near-obsessive focus on vulnerability, trauma, and melancholia in contemporary political thought, Braidotti promotes a politics of affirmation that has the potential to become its own generative life force.

Democracy in What State?
Giorgio Agamben, Alain Badiou,
Daniel Bensaid, Wendy Brown,
Jean-Luc Nancy, Jacques Rancière,
Kristin Ross, and Slavoj Žižek

"Is it meaningful to call oneself a democrat? And if so, how do you interpret the word?"

In responding to this question, eight iconoclastic thinkers prove the rich potential of democracy, along with its critical weaknesses, and reconceive the practice to accommodate new political and cultural realities.

Lineages of Political Society

Studies in Postcolonial Democracy
Partha Chatterjee

Partha Chatterjee builds on his theory of "political society" and reinforces its salience to contemporary political debate. Incorporating the concerns of South Asian studies, postcolonialism, the social sciences, and the humanities, he broadly critiques the past three hundred years of western political theory to ask, Can democracy be brought into being, or even fought for, in the image of Western democracy as it exists today?

Hermeneutic Communism

From Heidegger to Marx
Gianni Vattimo and Santiago
Zabala

Separating communism from its metaphysical foundations, which include an abiding faith in the immutable laws of history and an almost holy conception of the proletariat, the authors recast Marx's theories at a time when capitalism's metaphysical moorings—in empire and industrialization—are buckling.

THE SPIRIT OF

Why Governing Demands It and Campaigning Undermines It

The Spirit of Compromise

Why Governing Demands It and Campaigning Undermines It
Amy Gutmann & Dennis Thompson

Eminent political thinkers Gutmann and Thompson show that campaigning for political office calls for a mindset that blocks compromise, standing on principle to mobilize voters and mistrusting opponents in order to defeat them. Good government calls for an opposite cluster of attitudes and arguments, that inclines politicians to adjust their principles and to respect their opponents.

The Cold War and After

History, Theory, and the Logic of International Politics

Marc Trachtenberg

What makes for war or for a stable international system? Are there general principles that should govern foreign policy? Trachtenberg demonstrates how, in studying international politics, the conceptual and empirical sides of the analysis can be made to connect with each other, and –how historical, theoretical, and even policy issues can be tied together in an intellectually respectable way.

Ethics in an Age of Terror and Genocide

Identity and Moral Choice

Kristen Renwick Monroe

What causes genocide? Why do some stand by, doing nothing, while others risk their lives to help the persecuted? Monroe analyzes moving and disturbing interviews with bystanders, Nazi supporters, and rescuers of Jews during the Holocaust to lay bare critical psychological forces operating during genocide, and underscores the significance of identity for moral choice.
